2024 PRIMARY CARE DIABETES CONFERENCE SPONSORSHIP PROSPECTUS

ABOUT THE PCDSA

Primary Care Diabetes Society Australia

The Primary Care Diabetes Society of Australia (PCDSA) is a society of health practitioners with an interest in the primary care management of diabetes in Australia. The Society was established in 2015 and is a not-for-profit organisation.

“The aim of the Society is to support primary care health professionals to deliver high quality clinically effective care, in order to improve the lives of people living with diabetes”

The specific aims are to:

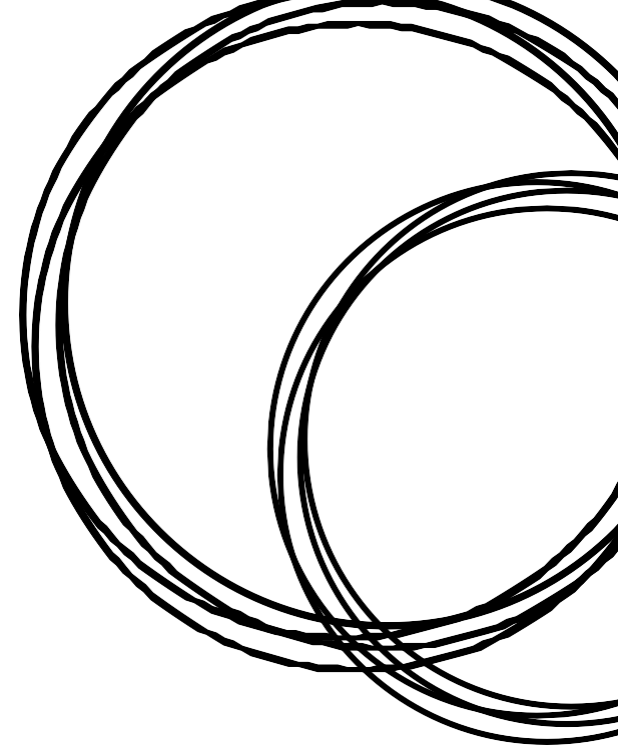

- Share best practice in delivering quality diabetes team care;
- Provide high-quality education tailored to health professional needs;
- Be a voice for primary care professionals intent on improving standards of diabetes care;
- Collaborate with organisations and promote and participate in research involved in promoting high-quality diabetes care;
- Disseminate up-to-date, evidence-based information to health professionals; and
- Promote coordinated and timely interdisciplinary care.

PCDSA membership consists of:

354 members from across Australia, from the disciplines of: General Practitioners, Diabetes Educators, Pharmacists, Dietitians, Podiatrists, Exercise Physiologists, Psychologists, Physiotherapists, Nurses/Practice Nurses.

2024 PRIMARY CARE DIABETES CONFERENCE

Organised by the PCDSA, this one-day conference will combine cutting edge scientific content with practical clinical sessions basing the education on much more than just knowing 'the guidelines'. Primary care models of care, systems and strategies for diabetes practice management will also be explored and practically presented. The conference will be recorded to enable increased access for those unable to attend – further those who attend on the day will be give access to the recordings.

The Conference program has been specifically designed for all primary care clinicians working in diabetes care so to:

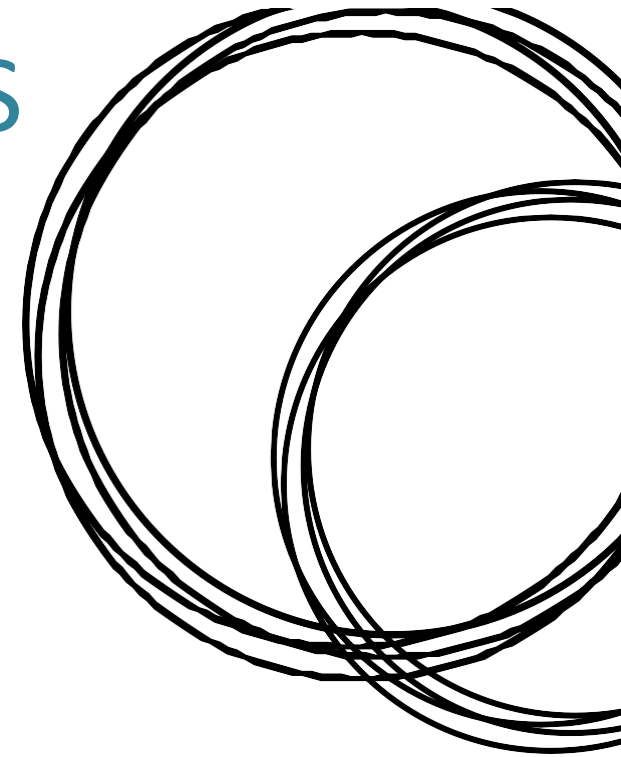

- Advance their education and learning in the field of diabetes health care
- Promote best practice standards and clinically effective team based care in the management of diabetes
- Facilitate the collaboration between health professionals to improve the quality of diabetes primary care across Australia
- Enhance their knowledge of adaptable models and systems of diabetes care

Previously the PCDSA has run similar annual meetings, engaging over 150 healthcare professional working in primary care come together for a programme aimed at delivering education that ensures each individual comes away with enhanced knowledge and confidence in managing current clinical issues in diabetes. Given that this conference will be recorded for access later, we anticipate that the reach of the content will be significantly higher.

80% of all diabetes care is delivered in primary care. The Primary Care Diabetes Society of Australia is leading the way in ensuring person-centred, evidence-based diabetes team care is provided within the primary care arena. Those attending will leave the Conference with a better understanding of treatment options and individualised care, having been able to draw on the experience of the experts presenting at the Conference.

PRIMARY CARE
DIABETES SOCIETY OF AUSTRALIA

A distinguished panel of speakers will share their specialised experience in an environment conducive to optimal learning. Ample time for questions and the opportunity for audience participation and networking will be available.

The Conference is a multi-sponsored activity, with sponsorship used for the running of the events incorporating full staging of the activity (venue costs, delegate refreshments and audio-visual costs) along with the development of an educational, highly valued programme of content. Sponsors also have the opportunity to contribute to the Conference programme, providing an avenue for knowledge sharing and promotion.

It is anticipated that Conference delegates will comprise the full complement of disciplines delivering primary diabetes care, including: General Practitioners, Diabetes Educators, Primary Care Nurses, Pharmacists, Podiatrists, Dietitians, Optometrists, Exercise Physiologists and other allied health professionals. Further, by expanding the Conference to enable post conference access through recording the presentations, also making them available to registrants after the event, we anticipate increasing access to those who would normally have difficulty attending in person eg. rural and regional practitioners.
